"I condemn the murder of Luis Manuel Medina and Leónidas Martínez," said the Director-General. "Such brutality spreads terror not only throughout the media community of the country concerned but through society at large. I urge the authorities to do all they can to bring those responsible for this crime to trial and support the media whose contribution to informed public debate is indispensable to maintain respect for internationally recognized human rights, notably the basic right of freedom of expression." A gunman entered the premises of local radio station FM 103 on Tuesday morning and shot Luis Manuel Medina while he was presenting the Milenio Caliente (Hot Millennium) news programme. Leónidas Martínez, who was the director of FM103 and the programme's producer was also killed.
